NEX Gas Station: Safety concerns put #1 gas tank out of commission

Heather King Navarrete
Rota Coastline

Contractors specializing in gas station repair and preventative maintenance are checking the integrity of the number one gas tank at the NEX gas station this week.

This visit comes after base officials found gasoline vapors in the tank vault at a higher than normal rate, said Clark Weaver, safety director, Naval Station, Rota.

"Whenever you are talking about gasoline, there is potential for explosives," said Weaver. "The main concern is that we're having gasoline vapors inside of the tank vault - higher than we'd like it to be."

The tank was determined to be at the moderate risk level, the third highest level out of a five-level rating, said Weaver. In any explosive situation, three elements must be present: oxygen, a flammable environment, and an ignition source.

Although no ignition source was present, immediate action was taken by NEX, Public Works, and the Safety Dept. to eliminate the possibility of a mishap.

"Because it was a public place we chose to take action and isolate the one tank that had the flammable atmosphere. It abides by the principle, 'Accept no unnecessary risk.'"

Lt. Charlie Willmore, public works operations officer, said, "It's something that we know is a problem but we want to catch it before it is a problem with a capital 'P.'"

Until contractors can assess the situation and fix the problem, the gas station is operating off of only one tank, which means that tankers have increased their scheduled stops to the NEX station. This, in the midst of trucking strikes, means that gasoline deliveries have been, and may continue to be, minimally delayed.

"We've traded convenience for that extra measure of safety," said Weaver, "but when you're thinking of the public and your kids, you want to be sure that you are providing a full level of safety."

The system was designed to work all four pumps off of one tank, said a base official, so customers should not expect any extra delays at the gas pumps.

Base mildly affected by EU truckers' strike

Heather King Navarrete
Rota Coastline

The trucker's strikes, held throughout the European Union to protest high gasoline prices, minimally impacted operations at Naval Station, Rota, last week.

But, even though the strikes have been called off, the worst is yet to come, said Werner Wolff, a German truck driver.

"The Spanish government signed an agreement that the [gasoline] prices will decrease, but in Germany nothing has happened," said Wolff.

"The truckers' [unions in Germany] are taking a break to plan the next strike, so when it hits it will be bigger and better organized," he said.

Base officials are watching developments because German truckers ship goods to the commissary and the galley on base.

Another trucker, Pahl Wilfried, who participated in the German strikes, said they will continue with the strikes in his country until gasoline prices compare to his European Union counterparts.

"The reason this is still not settled is because we're talking about the European Union and there are still differences from country to country," said Wilfried.

"Germany still pays

Ombudsman sought, CO's Calls, CMC farewell

On September 18, 19 and 20th I had the wonderful opportunity to visit with several small groups of Naval Station Petty Officers (E4 through E6) during a series of Captain's Calls. I began the meetings by sharing a bit of "CO philosophy," then I opened the floor to comments in an effort to find out what was on the minds of NAVSTA Petty Officers. During the open discussion sessions I said that I would research your questions and publish the answers in a future edition of the Coastline. This was the edition of the Coastline that I wanted to publish the Q&As, but I approached the Coastline staff a little too late in the game to get my responses into this edition. Not to worry! The Q&As will show up in next week's Coastline.

Im in the market for a new Commander U.S. Naval Activities Spain Area Ombudsman. This is the job held by Suzanne McLain until recently, but she and her husband will soon be on their way to bigger and better things back in the U.S. The COMNAVACTS Area Ombudsman is essentially the Ombudsman's Ombudsman. She (although there's no reason it can't be a he) serves as the primary information link between COMNAVACTS and the various NAVSTA unit ombudsmen. If interested, you would participate in various committees, boards or group meetings as an information and referral liaison and a representative for all unit ombudsmen. The COMNAVACTS Area Ombudsman also acts as the Ombudsman Assembly Chair/Coordinator, and schedules periodic Ombudsman Assembly Meetings and training. As the Ombudsman's Ombudsman it is important that you have had experience as a unit ombudsman. If you are interested in this important position, please get in touch with the new COMNAVACTS CMC, Master Chief Melendez, at ext 2444, or contact me at ext 2440 more a more complete job description and any additional information you desire. If you know of someone that would be great in this job, please let them know that I'm interested in chatting with them!

Lastly, I'd like to bid farewell to the outgoing COMNAVACTS CMC and his lovely wife Suzanne. Master Chief McLain and Suzanne will be "officially" retiring from the Navy tomorrow, but I suspect that both of them will always maintain a fond place in their hearts for all of the wonderful and exciting memories that their tour the Navy has provided. You both have given above and beyond the call of duty, and for a grateful nation I will say THANK YOU. Fair winds and following seas my friends.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I started my college education back in 1974 while stationed aboard the USS Simon Lake (AS-33) which was stationed at Rota, Spain. I attended classes through the City Colleges of Chicago program in Rota, Spain.. When I was transferred from Rota to state side I continued my education through various college programs.

When I was discharged from the navy at the end of my four year enlistment, I accumulated over 30 semester hours and started college as a sophomore at Santa Barbara City College in California. I transferred to a four year school at San Francisco State University where I received my B.A. in International Relations. I also earned a Juris Doctorate degree from Golden Gate University School of Law. I am currently practicing law in Las Vegas, Nevada and am a member of both the California and Nevada state bars.

Looking back 25 years, I believe my motivation in continuing my education started at Rota, Spain and its fine educational facilities. I hope that this letter will inspire others to continue their educational endeavors because I would not have imagined in my dreams when I first took courses at Rota, Spain that I would eventually become an attorney.

Sincerely,
Richard Brattain

Navy Birthday Message

from Adm. James O. Ellis,
Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Naval Forces, Europe

On 13 October we will proudly celebrate the 225th birthday of our Navy. The American Navy was born before our nation was established and has continued to lead in her defense through over two centuries of selfless service and combat excellence. It is a superb tradition of which we should all be justifiably proud.

Our service history reflects an unbroken string of operational achievements critical to the protection of our nation and her interests.

Our Navy's fighting spirit has been evident from the first littoral warfare successes in the Revolutionary War victory at Yorktown to the strategic engagement of the Great White Fleet; from the cold, decisive struggle in the Battle of the Atlantic to the awe-inspiring D-day invasion; from the skies and seas of Korea through the long vigilance of the Cold War; and from the challenges of Vietnam to the different but equally dangerous demands of combat in the Gulf and the Balkans. The historical record is clear: the navy has always well and truly answered our nation's call.

Throughout our dynamically changing history, the singular constant and critical element of our Navy's success has been you who serve so well and so proudly. Together, we walk in the path of the humble and the heroes who have set an example and a standard of excellence that you all meet and exceed every day as the core of the finest Navy the world has ever known.

Today, in Europe and around the world, our Navy is influencing events, enforcing the peace, engaging democratically developing countries, and showcasing the best our nation has to offer.

You are a source of comfort to our friends and a strong caution to those who choose to be our foes. As we mark 225 years of selfless Navy service and sacrifice, we should pause to reflect both on our proud history and the unique capabilities and relevance that we bring to a turbulent world.

It is no exaggeration to point out that no one else, anywhere, can do what you do as well and as widely.

I am personally proud of each and every one of you, not just for what you do every day, but for what I know you and those you lead into our bright future will always do – defend our nation and serve her well. It is an honor and a privilege to serve with you.

Stop! Drop! and Roll!: Fire Prevention Week observed here

JO3 Ricky Allen
Rota Coastline

Several organizations on base this week participated in Fire Prevention Week, which is observed annually, Oct. 10 - 14.

The week is set aside to conduct activities and give presentations concerning fire safety.

Fire Prevention Week is targeted to all audiences, from toddlers to adults. One of the many areas on base that observed Fire Prevention Week was the base Child Development Center. Children watched a video brought by the Fire Department and marveled at the sight of the department's mascot, Sparky the dog.

Some children were attentive to the video, paying attention to the lessons the video showed concerning the use of fire detectors, and what to do if a fire occurs. Others enjoyed being carried from the window of Sparky's house by the base firemen. But, many children learned the popular phrase of what to do if their clothes catch on fire.

"I learned to stop! drop! and roll!" said Kylen Parker, age 4.

The enthusiasm of the children at events like this is always a good sign, said Brian Carter, a Naval Station fire inspector.

The children's enthusiasm is brought home to their parents and they relay all the information given to them during the class visit. By doing this, everyone gets the message, he said.

Many parents, due to their children's participation in Fire Prevention Week, have already completed mock fire drills, and have tested their smoke detectors.

"The children are already coming home asking several questions concerning fire prevention. In fact, we've already completed two fire drills and checked our smoke detectors," said Teresa Robey, mother of two elementary-age children.

Fire Prevention Week discusses important subjects that the children need to learn about such as the dangers of fires and preventive measures, said Tyanita Thompson, CDC caregiver.

Learning about the fire detectors and what the detectors are used for is a very important point in learning fire safety because it makes them more aware of their surroundings, she said.

The fire department also sponsored activities at DGF Elementary and DGF High School which included coloring contests and lectures.

Other events scheduled to take place this weekend include a display of the base Fire trucks at the Navy Exchange tomorrow, and a parade through base housing Saturday, Oct. 14.

For more information about base activities during Fire Prevention Week, call Tony Athans, fire inspector, at ext. 3936.

Prosecutor shot in Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) - A Spanish state prosecutor was shot in the head and left brain dead Monday in an attack authorities blamed on the armed Basque group ETA.

Luis Portero, head state attorney for the southern Andalusian Superior Court, was shot as he entered his apartment building in the southern city of Granada shortly after 2 p.m., said a police spokeswoman in the regional capital of Seville.

A medical report said the 59-year-old Portero, who is married with four children, was "in a deep and irreversible coma" and described him as brain dead, the police spokeswoman said.

The attack was believed to have been carried out by three people, said the spokeswoman, who spoke on condition of anonymity. Two shots were fired at the attorney, one hitting him in the back of the head, she said.

Although no group has claimed responsibility, authorities accused ETA, which has claimed nearly 800 killings since it began a bombing and shooting campaign for the independence of northern Spain's Basque region in 1968.

So far this year, ETA has claimed the killing of 12 people and is blamed for one other.

Earlier Monday, an army officer in Seville found a bomb in his car, believed planted by ETA. The device was the third found by military personnel in the city in as many days.

While most of its victims have been security force personnel, ETA - a Basque-language acronym for Basque Homeland and Freedom - has frequently attacked judicial figures as part of its 32-year-old campaign.

Spanish and French police have responded to ETA's stepped-up campaign this year with the arrest of more than 30 suspected ETA members and supporters in recent weeks.

Pacifist groups have called for demonstrations in cities throughout Spain on Tuesday to denounce Portero's shooting.

Combined Federal Campaign kicks off

JOC Jon McMillan
Rota Coastline

More than 30 representatives from base commands and departments are distributing Combined Federal Campaign information booklets and are planning activities to help raise money for the campaign.

The Combined Federal Campaign is an annual fundraising event endorsed by the federal government in order to allow charitable organizations an opportunity to solicit donations from the federal workforce.

"The CFC has strong rules," said Ens. Susan Wood, base coordinator for the campaign. "This is a good way to give to charities because the organizations have already been pre-screened."

That pre-screening includes providing data on an organization's overhead costs and ensuring public accountability standards are met. Nearly 1,500 charitable organizations are represented in this year's campaign.

More than $9.9 million was raised worldwide last year, with Rota contributing nearly $150 thousand.

"We had nearly 1,500 contributors last year," said Wood. "That's about a fifty-percent giving rate and it was one of the best in Europe."

Organizers, of course, would like to raise more money this year, but Wood said the goal is 100 contact – not participation. "Our key persons should be delivering the information booklet to everyone," said Wood. "CFC-Overseas really thinks high of Rota and our participation."

The campaign began Oct. 2 and the Rota CFC committee has already conducted a car wash – raising nearly $200 – and is planning a Three-on-Three Basketball tournament for Saturday.

"All the money raised at base-wide events is being given to F-S-Y-P, Family Support and Youth Activity Programs, which means all that money comes back to the Rota," said Wood.

Contributors may also select to have their donation come back to Rota and be used for family and youth programs. By writing 'FSYP' on the pledge card, the donation is returned to the community.

The Combined Federal Campaign runs through Nov. 17. For a complete list of Rota Key persons, visit: www.rota.navy.mil/cfc

U.S. 6th Fleet gets new commander

USS LA SALLE, At Sea (NWS) — Vice Adm. Daniel J. Murphy Jr. was relieved Oct. 3 by Vice Adm. Gregory G. Johnson as the Commander, Striking and Support Forces Southern Europe, and Commander, U.S. 6th Fleet, aboard the command ship USS

La Salle (AGF 3) during a ceremony while operating in the Adriatic Sea.

Murphy was the U.S. and NATO naval component commander for Operation Allied Force, and as such led an extremely successful joint and combined naval force against the forces of Serbian president Slobodan Milosevic.

Johnson assumes command after completing a tour as senior military assistant to the Secretary of Defense. He was confirmed as a vice admiral last year.

Adm. James O. Ellis, Commander-in-Chief, Allied Forces Southern Europe, and Commander in Chief, U.S. Naval Forces Europe, also attended the ceremony.

More information about the U.S. 6th Fleet can be found at <http://www.c6f.navy.mil>.

FY01 BOOST program deadline approaching

The Broadened Opportunity for Officer Selection and Training (BOOST) program is soliciting applications for FY-01. BOOST offers Sailors with exceptional leadership potential an opportunity to attend a rigorous 10-month college preparatory curriculum at Newport, Rhode Island, and pursue a commission as an unrestricted line officer or Nurse Corps officer via a college or university affiliated with an NROTC unit.

Unlike previous years, Sailors selected for the FY01 BOOST program will remain on active duty and receive full pay and benefits both during BOOST and while pursuing their baccalaureate degree. In addition, an annual education voucher will be provided to offset a portion of college tuition, fees, and book costs.

Applications for the FY01 BOOST program are being accepted until Nov. 1. Details of eligibility criteria and application requirements and procedures are contained in NAVADMIN 249/00, which can be found on the Internet at <http://www.bupers.navy.mil/messages.html> or find out more at <http://www.cnet.navy.mil>.

STRIKES

higher taxes, and until it is all settled, the strikes will continue."

Although the Spanish government conceded to truckers by granting tax credits, another trucker's strike is scheduled in Cadiz for October 23-25, if salary negotiations are unsuccessful, said an anonymous source.

The base will deal with the strikes by increasing their reserves, if needed, said Cmdr. Larry Arcement, supply officer.

"We'll just deal with it," said Arcement. "We'll increase our inventory so that we'll be prepared if a trucker's strike obstructs the flow through our pipelines."

Last week, strikes caused late deliveries of fuel to the NEX gas station and a three-day delay in the delivery of food to the galley.

"[Strikes] can disrupt our supply lines," said Arcement, "but so far it's been pretty seamless and it hasn't been noticed by the customers."

At the commissary, one shipment was more than two days late when the trucker was held up at a post for 29 hours during a French demonstration.

The delay didn't affect customers, said Chris Gomez, deputy commissary officer, but it did put an added strain on DECA workers who had to undergo scheduling changes and put in overtime.

The German trucker who endured the French strike by spending more than a day parked at a post was understanding and supported the French cause.

"It is the right thing for them to do," he said, "because trucking on the road is getting harder because expenses are rising."

Spontaneous strikes have been uprising for nearly a month throughout Europe in protest of high gasoline costs.

Laurels don't make a very good cushion

I once had a CO who had the habit of asking, "What are you doing for the Navy today?" It's a good question. But he had the habit of asking it right after you had just done something for the Navy and were taking a break to rest on your laurels! Can't you take the time to enjoy your accomplishments?

Yes you can, but not for long. Laurels don't make a very good cushion. Someone once said that people who are resting on their laurels are wearing them on the wrong end.

As we celebrate the Navy's birthday and look back at all our accomplishments, it's also a good time to ask: "what am I doing for the Navy today?" The next generation of Sailors will look back to you and me and build upon the legacy we leave.

In a world which never rests at peace, there's not much time for you and me to rest. Today we celebrate. Tomorrow we put back on the dungarees and khaki and go to work. And maybe we ask ourselves the question, what are we doing for the Navy today?

Happy Birthday, Sailors! Enjoy the laurels, but don't rest on them. They don't make a very good cushion, and besides, there's not much time to rest in a world which is not at peace.

Possible to make your marriage better and better. Who knows? Maybe for you the best is yet to come!

Vila Real de Santo Antonio, Portugal

story and photos by
PH I (AW) Ron Heppner
Rota Coastline

On the recent Columbus Day holiday, ITT offered a shopping trip to Vila Real de Santo Antonio, Portugal. Prior to the trip I had never been to Portugal, or west of Rota for that matter. While shopping was not my main objective, I had an opportunity to explore an unfamiliar country and a town I had never heard of before.

My adventure began at 6:02 a.m., when the bus, filled to near capacity, headed north on route A-4. It was dark and uneventful until we were about two hours into the four hour, thirty minute drive, and made a venta stop past Sevilla. After a quick cup of coffee we were back on the road with the sun rising and our guide Rosella talking over the speaker with information about Portugal and the countryside as we traveled route A-49, west through the Huelva province. Among other facts, Rosella explained that Huelva is known for strawberry production and that, when in season, roadside vendors offer strawberries for next to nothing.

Once past the city of Huelva, the journey continued on route IP1, a winding secondary road that flows through rolling hills of citrus, almond, and olive groves all the way to the bridge over the Guadiana River into Vila Real. Before crossing the river on the suspension bridge, we were provided the opportunity to change money to Portuguese Escudos at 185 to the dollar.

There was much discussion of whether it was more beneficial to exchange dollars or pesetas for escudos or to use pesetas for shopping. In hindsight, we found most vendors had marked prices in escudos and pesetas, with the peseta rate being up to 30 percent lower.

Vila Real, like most of Iberia, was previously inhabited by Cyretes, Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Greeks, Romans, and Moors. In fact, the Algarve region of southern Portugal gets its name from the Arabic "Al Gharb" meaning, the west. One distinction of Vila Real de Santo Antonio developed after an earthquake destroyed the entire city in 1755. The city was rebuilt in only five months utilizing the same grid pattern that was devised for Lisbon, Portugal's capital.

Today, Vila Real is an unpretentious fishing port, and a preferred destination for Spanish housewives who travel across the river by ferry from Ayamonte, Spain to purchase local ceramics, linens, and embroidery at bargain prices. The tourist boom that much of the Algarve has experienced seems to have left Vila Real relatively unscathed. Visual symptoms of a tourist takeover are almost non-existent, the exceptions being multi-lingual menus and the recreational boat harbor.

Vila Real was gearing up for a feria with tents down the middle of the street along the river, offering ceramics, linens, and various other household items. Walking along the palm-lined riverside provides a view of the suspension bridge, Ayamonte, and the small boat marina. Past the marina it gets a bit run down, men fish from the rocks of the break-wall, and beached wooden boats are to be seen until the street ends at a fish cannery, where seagulls hover over fresh offal discharges. The other side of the street starts out with lots of shops and cafes, and gradually turns into more cafes and less shops before the scenery deteriorates with buildings in ill repair.

The shopping district offered clothing, baskets, ceramics, household items, linens, brassware and liquor. Just off the blocks of shops was a series of yellow tents comprising the central food market with abundant supplies of dry fish, varieties of cheeses and meats, almond sweets, olives and local wines. A specialty is honey, locally gathered from the citrus groves of the Algarve, costing about 350 escudo per pound.

Portuguese cuisine is mainly seafood based, with the national specialty being Bacalhau, which is dried, salted cod. Dry, salty fish didn't really set any "must try" alarms in my mind, as I took a seat with fellow travelers, Barry and Chris. As we savored some local red wine from Alpiara, Portugal and studied the menu at Tasca Especialidades, we sought advice from the waiter.

Barry and I decided on the Menu del Dia offering Arroz de Marisco (rice with shellfish) for two, which we thought would be like paella, and Chris ordered Ensopada de Cabrito (lamb and toast casserole).

When the Arroz de Marisco arrived we found ourselves looking at a small, still boiling, cauldron which we were prepared to devour immediately but our waiter told us to let it cool off for two minutes.

Meanwhile, Chris had started on his lamb, which was very tender and covered with french fries. Following the excruciating two minute cauldron watch, Barry and I dove into a pot full of crab claws, good-sized shrimp, little clams, and mussels with rice and a well seasoned bisque-like broth, that would have fed four easily. Needless to say we were overwhelmed by the quality of the meal, and the portion size reminded us that on the bus, Rosella had mentioned the generous portions.

For a change of scenery, interesting shopping, and scrumptious food of great proportions, take a trip to Vila Real de Santo Antonio.

This past weekend, Kim Díaz attended a wedding party held at El Sotillo in Chiclana. Here is her report: "Last Saturday my husband and I were invited to a wedding reception at El Sotillo in Chiclana. I hadn't been there in years, so I really didn't know what to expect. Absolutely breathtaking! The organization was great. The waiters wear those Madonna microphones!! The prettiest wedding cake I've ever seen in Spain, decorated with fresh flowers. There were over 300 people at this wedding but, due to the size of the room, you would never know it. After a ton of wonderful food was served, the cake etc. we went into the disco area. Out of the corner of my eye I saw there was yet another Disco area! Only then did I realize there was another wedding going on! After a while of dancing, an announcement was made" time for the CORRIDA." What a better way to end an evening than watching your friends pretend to be "El Cordobes". The bulls themselves are actually harmless!!!! Still a bull's a bull!!!! El Sotillo is really easy to find. Go towards Chiclana, turn at the McDonalds and follow the signs. There's plenty of parking. You don't have to make this an evening event. You can make reservations for lunch too. If you're looking for something different, this is a good option." El Sotillo is advertised on the back cover of the latest restaurant guide.

Restaurante La Cazuela in Rota will be closed for vacation October 16 through 30.

Bar Playa in Rota now opens early - 9:30 a.m. - every day except Wednesday when they are closed. They stay open all day, too, so you can get an early dinner if you choose. They offer lots of good dishes, good servings and good prices. If you haven't tried it, do so the next time you don't feel like cooking.

Work is continuing on the shopping guide and there is still time to act on any suggestions or recommendations so I would love to get some!

AFN to air final Presidential debates

AFN will air the final two debates for Presidential candidates Al Gore and George W. Bush. The second session of the three-debate format will air tape-delayed at 7 p.m. Oct. 12. The final debate will air live at 3 a.m. Oct. 18 and then again tape-delayed at 7 p.m. This third debate will be conducted in a town-hall format. The live broadcasts will air on AFN News Sports and the tape-delayed sessions will air on AFN Europe.

Comment cards now available on Internet

Customers can now fill out a web-based customer comment card on the Internet. The ICE program is a web-based computer application that gives a standardized method of collecting and processing customer feedback about standard quality of life services in the military. The program can be accessed on the Internet at <http://www.ice.navsta.rota.navy.mil>. For more information, see the Aug. 24 Coastline, page 3, at <http://www.rota.navy.mil>.

Web-based personal assistants

This week I would like to focus my column on personal services available on the World Wide Web. When we used to talk about personal services we were referring to things like administrative assistants and accountants.

Now in some parts of the US the web brings us everything. I not talking just about books from Amazon or flowers for mom. Through web sites like www.internethomedelivery.com, www.kozmo.com, www.urbanfetch.com and www.streamline.com you can shop, buy and have delivered all types of products. For example, Urbanfetch.com has free one-hour delivery for wine (you'll be carded by the delivery driver), electronics, music, books, movies, games, drugstore goods, beauty stuff, food and gifts. Their food menu offers complete gourmet dinners, salads, sandwiches and many other made to order entrees.

Streamline.com offers dry cleaning, shoe repair, bottled water service, video rentals, UPS package pickup, postage stamps and film developing. Streamline costs $30 per month plus the costs of the goods. Other home delivery services have different pricing schemes developed for their area of operation. Almost all of them accept payment in various forms including credit cards and electronic fund transfers. One even has a key guard system that has you deposit a key with them and they'll deliver and put away your groceries if you are not home.

There is at least one personal fitness trainer that is available via the web. After you have established a relationship with him you can send him an email to tell him where you are and what you are doing and within a short time he will answer with a training routine developed for your specific needs. Right now, I writing this from Sigonella, Italy and he would develop a workout for me based on the fact that I'm staying at a farm and don't have access to a gym.

There's more available than food or fitness. Want to get a Master's degree in Nutrition and Food Science. Contact Central Michigan University and they will register you via the web, email or fax (or in person of course). They'll let you create your own schedule the very same way. Then they will deliver your textbooks to your home. Need help with your homework? One of your professors will respond using email, fax or they will call you at home. What more could you ask for?

These types of services are not without their critics. Some commentators remark that the web is creating blurry eyed addicts that never see the light of day and these kinds of services only contribute to that unhealthy lifestyle. That's true to some extent, but if used wisely it can be a great asset for busy professionals, shut-ins and the elderly. Now if I can just get someone from the web to write my mother.

That's all for this week, happy computing!

DRIVE - IN

Drive-in movies begin around 9:00 p.m.

Friday – The Art of War (R)
Saturday – Mission Impossible 2 (PG-13)
Sunday – Remember the Titans (PG)

The Art of War (R: for strong violence, some sexuality, language & brief drug content) Thriller/Drama; Wesley Snipes & Marie Matiko (117 min). When the United Nation is threatened by a team of highly skilled terrorists, the one man capable of stopping them, an International security expert, is framed for assault. With government agents on his tail and terrorists closing in, he is determined to stop the terrorist action and save the UN from being completely overtaken.

The Replacements (PG-13: for some crude sexual humor and language) Drama; Keanu Reeves & Gene Hackman (114 min). Everyone knows that a winter without football would be a disaster for sports fans everywhere. When their professional team goes on strike, the owners of the Washington Sentinels create a new team using players who love the game and think with their heads, not their wallets; never expecting to make the playoffs.

Autumn in New York (PG-13: for language and some sensuality) Drama; Richard Gere & Winona Ryder (104 min). A sad story of an older man, a known playboy, who picks up a younger woman and the two fall in love. However, when she reveals that she is suffering from a terminal illness, the relationship takes in a deeper meaning.

The Crew (PG-13: for sexual content, violence & language) Comedy/Action; Burt Reynolds (88 min). Four "fossilized" former wise guys face eviction from the Raj Mahal, a senior citizen residence hotel located on the otherwise posh strip of South Beach, Miami. Management plans to renovate the building to force higher rents and attract a classier clientele, but squeeze the old geezers out. Although in the sunset of their years, they hatch a simple plan to save their retirement residence.

Mission Impossible 2 (PG-13: for intense sequences of violent action & some sensuality) Action/Adventure; Tom Cruise & Dougray Scott (126 min). Ethan Hunt leads his IMF team to re-capture and destroy a deadly manufactured virus before it falls into the wrong hands.

Remember the Titans (PG-13) Denzel Washington (113 min). Based on a true story of Herman Boone, an African-American football coach who, in 1971, led a racially divided high school team, the Titans, to victory. Boone overcame racial prejudices and bigotry among his team and other coaches, teaching players respect, dedication, and strength. He was a huge inspiration and role-model to the team and made a great impact on the small community of Alexandria, Virginia.

PRAYERS

This is a new day with many new paths to choose, Dear Lord. So please lead me, guide me along the right paths every hour of this day and always. Happily I pray with and for my co-workers, family members and loved ones, so I ask that You lend Your guidance to us. Lord, watch over us as we strive to do our best. At this quiet moment, Dear Father, I wish to give You thanks for all You have done. And I ask that You might help me and all those that I commend to Your care, to have greater prosperity. From Your storehouse of goodness, let me receive those things I need to live comfortably and happily, cared for and loved by You. And for these many blessings I give You thanks Lord God and Father. ## Admirals pound Bobcats 33-12

Angelina Iannacone
Rota Coastline

The DGF Admirals pounded the London Central Bobcats with a score of 33-12, Saturday.

In the beginning of the first quarter, there were a few mistakes made by the Admirals, but then Andy Nowacki intercepted the ball and ran it for a gain of 60 yards. Though the Admirals defense was very strong during the game, the Bobcats still managed to pull off a touchdown. DGF came from behind a six-point deficit, with a touchdown by Kurt Lee. An extra point put the Admirals ahead 7-6 in the first quarter. Near the end of the quarter, London Central scored a second touchdown. Though they attempted a two-point conversion, they failed and the game progressed to the second quarter with the score being 7-12, London Central's favor.

With the Bobcats fumble in the second quarter and several penalties, the Admirals were able to score again with another touchdown by Lee. With the Bobcats being penalized for unnecessary roughness, the Admirals gained enough yards for Lee to score yet another touchdown, making the score 19-12. After London Central got another penalty, this time for pass interference, DGF scored again. The rest of the quarter was a defensive struggle between both teams. This would leave the score at the end of the half Admirals 25, Bobcats 12.

During the third quarter, London Central was not doing too well, with an incomplete pass and a blocked punt by the Admirals nose guard Joe Tolliver. The Admirals received a penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct. Close to the end of the quarter, the crowd was in an uproar when the referees threw one too many flags on the Admirals, including the one that resulted in a touchdown for London Central. But the ruling was changed, and the touchdown did not count.

The Admirals charged in to the fourth quarter with an awesome play by Edmonds. Soon after, he scored a touchdown. After a penalty against the Admirals for illegal procedure for having only 10 players on the field, they made the two-point conversion, and the score became 33-12.

Flag football season enters week five

JO3 Ricky Allen
Rota Coastline

There have been a few upsets and surprises as each flag football team looks back on five weeks of play.

Through constant analysis and discussion, the who's who of this year's flag football is not surprising. First and foremost, the top four offensive teams in the league rank as follows: NAVSTA, NSGA, NMCB-133 Runnin Roos, and Hospital. Secondly, the best defensive teams in the league are: NSGA, NAVSTA, NMCB-133 Runnin Roos, and AMC.

NAVSTA's overall performance has been outstanding. One quality they consistently show in each game is simply letting everyone play their game, meaning everyone does their job without micro-managing. This is a very impressive orchestra, with everyone playing the right note. Next, will the real VQ-2 please stand up? VQ-2 fell into a deep sleep and lost three games straight (VQ-who?). Finally, they would break their losing streak with a win against NEMOC. Wow.

Congratulations to the NMCB 133 Knights for their win against NCTAMS last week. At least they are showing motivation and spirit on the field (Hint, Hint, NEMOC). NEMOC should be coming to the field in a cold sweat, especially losing every game with their commanding officer present at the majority of their annihilations.

Possible spoilers for the playoffs go to NSWU-10, AMC, and NCTAMS. These teams know they have nothing to lose, therefore, giving them more than enough reasons to come to the field highly motivated. According to Russ Gale, MWR Athletic director, the Runnin' Roos would be the sleepers in the season with NCTAMS being a dominant factor in the weeks to come.

Well, a lot has happened since the last time my words graced these pages. When I left, Bobby Knight was still "Hoosier-proud". Now, he's unemployed and doing the talk show circuit on every channel. And while I hate to defend someone who is such a monumental pig, the fact is this: when you let the dog urinate on the couch for 29 years, you can expect a lot of barking when you up-and-decide to give him the boot. After all, at that point, it ain't the dog's fault. Let's roll...

It's Sunday evening and my head is pounding. I feel like I was watching a fourteen-day infomercial. That's fourteen days I will never get back. Those two excruciating weeks have got me wondering whether the IOC should consider increasing the interval between Olympic games from four years to ten.

For every ounce of inspiration, goodwill and joy I glean from the O-games, I am required to relinquish a good four hours of life. The trade-off is no longer advantageous to this viewer.

To begin with, the Olympics have gotten way too big. The number of events, the amount of televised hours, the amount of sponsorship and media devotion. All are way too much by half. To watch but a few hours is to attempt a delicate sip from the proverbial firehose. I remember a preacher once telling me that "if everything is special, nothing is special". Amen brother. Someone should tell that to the IOC.

By my count, during the 2000 Sydney games, 924 separate metals were handed out. 250 individuals around the globe can now call themselves "Olympic champions". By 2012, I expect a full 30% of the population to own a silver medal or higher.

In fact, I've noticed with each new event, a lesser emphasis is placed on actual athletics. The newly sanctioned women's weightlifters are a case in point. More than a few of these girls had yearbook pictures that were captioned with "most likely to be buried in a piano". I won't get into the hammer throwers.

Additionally, the Olympics are the only place two or more people can be so richly rewarded for their synchronization. Is this a talent that improves quality of life or complements the primal survival skills of man? It's hard to imagine the original Greek Olympiads placing such importance on doing things in perfect harmony. It's no mystery why "synchronized beast-spearling" never caught on in old Athens.

Another B-I-G problem with the Games is the television cover-

Sports Talk

with Russ Gambrel

age. Specifically, American television coverage. When I sat down to watch the finals of the 4x100 swimming medley, I had to first endure a 20-minute segment on the great white sharks of Australia. This would be fine if I was watching The Discovery Channel. But seeing how I'm watching the Olympics, the only thing I want know about sharks is when they're gonna add 'em to the pool with the swimmers. Now that's a competition the Greeks would be proud of.

Finally, I would be remiss if I didn't mention the awesome crapacular that was the men's U.S. basketball team. If it's possible to win gold and still choke, they somehow pulled it off. Also, Donald Sterling should seriously consider dumping his entire team and hiring the Lithuanians to become the new L.A. Clippers. It would be an immediate 30-win turnaround.

Now, since I promised all you Gamecocks fans out there, I will take an in-depth look at Lou Holtz's surprising team next week. 'Til then.
